CHAMBER OF COMMERCE.—NOTICE.—TO MERCHANTS AND BANKERS.—The Committee of the Chamber of Commerce, having reason to believe that on several recent occasions Shipmasters have been induced to sign Bills of Lading for large quantities of Cotton long before it has been shipped, consider it their duty to expose this fraudulent practice and to warn Merchants and Bankers when making advances on the security of Shipping Documents to satisfy themselves of the bona fide character of the same.

The Committee further warn Shipmasters that by conniving at such a practice, they involve their Owners in serious risks and expose themselves to the danger of a criminal prosecution.

By order of the Committee,
JAMES TAYLOR, Secretary.
Bombay, Chamber of Commerce, 27th April 1866.

By order of the Committee,
JAMES TAYLOR, Secretary.
Bombay, Chamber of Commerce, 10th April 1866.

THE "BOMBAY GUARDIAN."—The Bombay Guardian was published from 1851 to 1865, maintaining its character throughout this period as a religious, unsectional, Catholic Journal. Its publication ceased in July last, by a necessity that seemed unavoidable. Much regret for this cessation has since been expressed, and several friends have at length been made for its re-establishment under the former Editorship. Several gentlemen of known ability have agreed to write for it, and it is hoped that the questions of the day—literary, social, political, scientific, and missionary—may find appropriate treatment in its columns; the first place, in all discussions, being given to the testimony of Scripture.

TERMS OF SUBSCRIPTION—Rs. 12 per annum; with Indian Postage Rs. 15-4-0. Payable in advance, (quarterly, where more convenient.) Adress, "Editor Bombay Guardian, Tract and Book Depository, Esplanade."

AUCTION SALE OF THE ORIENTAL PAPER MILLS MACHINERY, &c.—On WEDNESDAY the 13th day of May 1866, at 4 P. M., Messrs. CRAWFORD & Co. are instructed to submit to Public Auction on the premises (by order of the Mortgagees and with the consent of the Mortgagor) all that piece of leasehold Land, in extent 2,370 square yards or thereabouts, with the Mills, Buildings, Machinery and other appliances now in the manufactory of Paper erected thereon, situated and being on the Parell Road and known as the Oriental Paper Mills.

The Machinery is strong and serviceable, and attached to it are the Boiling Cisterns for the preparation of Rags and other materials for Paper-making. The Machinery has been recently purchased, and is of a first class description, and it is believed that with an outlay of about Rupees 2,000 a month a nett profit of Rupees 1,500 per month might be realized. The investment is strongly recommended to the consideration of Capitalists as one which has a large field of operation in Bombay and little if any competition.

The Premises are held of Wittoba Mancojee and Cassinath Wittoba under a lease for 19 years and 6 months, from 30th January 1862, at a yearly rental of Rupees 225, a copy of which Lease will be produced at the time of sale for inspection.

For further particulars apply to the Auctioneers, or to the undersigned, Solicitors for the Mortgagees.

The Bombay Gazette.

FRIDAY, MAY 4, 1866.

THE prostration which has overtaken the share market of Bombay, and the wide distrust that prevails regarding every scheme which is the offspring of the last two or three years of speculation, have strengthened, if they have not suggested, the desire among the shareholding part of the community to blot out indiscriminately nearly every trace of the reckless madness engendered in the hey-dey of cotton prosperity. Our advocacy in December last of the winding up of the tottering Banks and flimsy Financials met with some opposition at the time, but the shareholders are so far endorsing our views that the fiat of extinction is going forth against them one by one; and those to whom a further lease of tentative life has been granted only live with the danger of Damocles over their head. The desire for winding up has spread from Financials and Banks to Land Companies, and the current talk in influential circles, European and Native, is the propriety of winding up the Back Bay, the Frere Land, and the Mazagon Reclamation Companies. The terrible depreciation in the value of these stocks, the dread that hangs over the head of every shareholder that further weighty demands will be made—a dread to which the heavy call by the Mazagon Company gives some foundation—and the impossibility of converting the shares into money, all combine to increase the panic and make shareholders perhaps unreasonably eager to put an end to the obligations that still impend over them. It is the fact that hundreds of shares in two of these Companies can be had in the bazaar for nothing by anybody who will only relieve the present holders of all future responsibility. On Frere Land shares Rs. 6,000 remain to be called up, and on Mazagon shares Rs. 1,000 (besides the amount of the present call) remain to be paid. Shareholders, in the extremity of their terror and distrust, imagine that with a public quite as distrustful as themselves, the market value of the shares will not keep pace with the payment of future calls; in other words, that such calls will only give a greater margin for loss. The proposal, however, is not one that should be adopted blindly, at haphazard, and in a moment of panic. It opens up the question of the real intrinsic worth and feasibility as an investment of each of the three schemes named—a question that was never fully considered during the day of large premiums. We do not enter into the merits of the proposal here; we merely bring it before the public with a suggestion that it may be considered on its own genuine merits rather than adopted under the pressure of the panic that now exists.

One of the most unsatisfactory features in the monetary condition of Bombay, and one of the greatest obstacles to the purification of its atmosphere and the restoration of confidence on the part of the public, is the enormous number of Land Company, Financial Company, and Bank shares pledged with the various Banking and Financial institutions in security of loans. Nearly every Bank has its boxes well filled with such documents; and hence sound and valuable stock is kept at an undue depression by the simple fact that every spurt in the market is taken advantage of by one or more of the Banks to throw several hundred shares into it for sale in a single forenoon. To this add any accidental demand for money upon a large scale for the purposes of legitimate trade, such as prevails at the present moment, when holders of securities are compelled to realise at any loss. The result is that from the operation of both causes good stock is kept below its real value; and it is depreciated to still more ridiculous figures if the price of cotton is uncertain or declining. Virtually many shares have been swept out of the market, which may be said to be no longer encumbered with the stock of the institutions that are being wound up or which have suffered large losses. But these in turn are compelled to realize their saleable securities at the first favourable opportunity, or irrespective of any opportunity under the compulsion of their own dire necessities; and, accordingly, so long as the process of liquidation is being carried on freely all around us, it is utterly impossible that certain classes of shares can reach their true value. The line of argument which those pursue who lean towards a winding up of the three Land Companies we have named, is that as most of their shares have been pledged with banking institutions and are thereby unhealthily depressed, and as few people are willing to buy, owing to a dread of heavy calls yet to come, it will be more profitable to the shareholders to wind the companies up, realize their property, and divide the proceeds. This may not be found so clear in practice as in theory, looking to the extravagant prices which two of the Companies gave for their property, and the utter impossibility of realising now any sum approaching to the original cost. The Mazagon Company have paid for their property 50 lacs, and are still (or at least were until very recently) owing to Government a balance of 10 lacs. The Frere Land Company have paid 60¼ lacs, and have still to pay 55 lacs. The Mazagon Company has had no available funds of its own since August last, and has been carrying on its works on borrowed money. On the other hand, the Frere Land Company have a considerable balance of their first call in hand; and a large portion of the sum yet owing for the property is not payable, we presume, till towards the end of the present year. If these Companies prove abortive, the rock on which they will have split will be the extravagant sums paid for the property acquired. Any Company starting with so exorbitant an outlay in hand cash, runs the greatest risk of coming to grief. The shareholders have to keep their liabilities in mind, in considering the propriety of winding up; and they have also to recollect that when they force their land upon the market it will be at a sacrifice which we would not like to estimate, and they would not like to bear. The Back Bay Company stands in a position widely different from the other two. Another advantage which the advocates of a winding up policy anticipate is that permanency will be secured to the value of good stock, and that Banks which are flooded with securities will be enabled to ascertain their real position. The great consideration, however, for the shareholders is not the securing of other companies from the consequences of loose banking or rash speculation; but simply are their own schemes sound, desirable and feasible. The dread of future calls need not deter them from carrying on the present schemes—supposing them to stand securely upon their own merits—since no Company can be formed that has not to submit to calls. If the shareholders are satisfied that the schemes are good they should manfully prosecute them; if these are bad, and that and not a passing panic is the true test,—then by all means let them be at once renounced. But, as we have said, our object is not to protrude a hasty opinion on a question involving many complicated considerations, but to direct the attention of the shareholders to the subject, and to counsel them to deliberate calmly and dispassionately upon all its bearings.

THERE appears to be some difference of opinion as to whether the condition of matrimony is, or is not, one which is likely to tend to the advantage of military officers serving in this country. The question has its difficulties, but with a view to its more definite sett unexampled difficulty at home and abroad. He found every thing in disorder, and had every thing to reconstruct. He found the new Council very much disposed to take upon itself the office of Section royle of State. To counteract this unseen but formidable influence, and to restore the Council and himself to the positions which they were respectively intended to occupy by the Act of the Parliament. He had to recast the whole judicial system of India, to create for her a paper currency, to superintend the remodelling of her taxation, and the reorganization of her finances. He had to develope a railway system, and last and most difficult task of all, to carry through the Herculean labour of amalgamating the Queen's armies." With regard to the public acts of the noble Lord in the important and responsible office which he has lately filled, there must of necessity exist much difference of opinion among the various classes in this country whose different interests are involved, but I think, that we, as community, have much reason to be grateful to His Lordship for the many beneficial measures which have been carried out during his administration of the affairs of this empire. The address, which will be sent to you, refers especially to the more important of these measures, and I need not therefore enlarge thereon nor detain you longer with any further observations, beyond remarking that I had frequent opportunities when in England of meeting His Lordship, who invariably evinced the greatest interest in all matters connected with India and the welfare of the native subjects of Her Majesty. (Applause.)

Mr. Munguldass Nathoobhoy then rose and said—SIR,—I am very glad indeed to accept the honour assigned me of moving the resolution which declares that we ought, as the people of Bombay, to testify our sense of the services performed by the late Secretary of State to the natives of this country. Sir, I consider that it is our business as natives never to allow any decided sympathy for the active cause and population of India, on the part of Europeans of position and influence, to pass without showing our full sense of the value of such sympathy. In the case of the present Lord Halifax there can be no question that his greatest merit in the Secretaryship of State has been the decided stand he all along took as regards the rights of the natives of this country. If he had the great merits of promoting, to the highest judicial functions, a native of India, but, above all, resisting the proposal to make breaches of contract criminal, and that on the ground of civil remedy only, criminal, a thing which ought to be remembered to his eternal honour. We cannot fail indeed to see in this, what we are exceedingly glad to be able to believe, namely, that the ministers of the Crown in England will vigilantly watch and check any undue attempts of the European settlers who resort to India for amassing wealth, to infringe upon sound principles of legislation, in order to hasten their end. I shall not be suspected, I am indeed the last man capable, of undervaluing the services which an influx of European energy will render to this country. But I believe those services will be all the more valuable if the future Secretaries of State for India follow carefully in the footsteps of Lord Halifax in keeping the spirit of commerce within its own just limits, and showing in every particular a scrupulous regard for the consciences and rights of the natives of India, as the fortunate that so good an example has been so early set in the highest place of English Government, after the direct rule of this country by Her Gracious Majesty. I consider it of great importance that the native public of India should show themselves active, on such occasions as this, in representing their feelings to the Government and people of England. It is a happy thing for the best interests of steady interest and sympathy with the cause of good government on the part of the people of that Government. We may be sure that sympathy will not fail; and the excellent intentions of the European gentlemen who wield power in this country itself, cannot fail to be strengthened and advanced by the fact that their efforts are helped by this feeling in England. I think that this country is to be congratulated on its happy circumstances in at last, under the good providence of God, reaping all the benefits with scarcely any of the evils of being a so-called conquered country. For my part, looking at the sensitive scrupulousness of the British mind on this question, I think such a man as Lord Halifax, and seeing how thoroughly the same feeling possesses the majority of the English people, I would rather say that the people of India have fallen into the hands of school-masters of a higher civilization than of conquerors. This is a consideration which we cannot too much lay to heart, at least those of us who care, not only for progress and civilization, but even for peace and order, without which nothing is possible in the way of moral advance. I am glad to be able to think, Sir, that Lord Halifax will be gratified by the signs of our grateful appreciation of the services he has done to the people of India. This is not the least of the reasons which demands and justifies the step we take to-day in assembling to do honour to the name of Lord Halifax. It would be a great encouragement to the illustrious gentlemen who occupy the first places of the Indian Secretariate in London, to know that the millions of this vast Empire, speaking through their foremost men, follow, with anxious and grateful feelings, their arduous labours in behalf of the Indian people. Some persons love to speculate on the circumstances of some far distant day when India, having by that time reached maturity of mind under the fostering rule of England, shall with mutual consent become, for the first time in Indian History, an independent nation. For my part, Sir, I am content to say that while the union of England with India gives us statesmen to watch over Indian rights, so just and sound and sympathetic in its principles as Lord Halifax, that union is the best, the best sense as Lord Halifax, that union is perpetual. (Applause.) I beg to move "that in the opinion of this meeting the services rendered to India by the Right Hon'ble Lord Halifax during his administration as President of the Board of Control of the late East India Company, and especially as Her Majesty's Secretary of State for India, deserve the hearty recognition of the people of this country." (Applause).

Mr. Dosabhoy Framjee, in seconding the resolution, remarked that, after what had been said by the Chairman and his friend who had moved the resolution which he held in his hand, he would crave the attention of the meeting only for a few minutes. He did not think it necessary to go into the details of every point in the administration by Lord Halifax as Principal Secretary of State for India, which was a fresh testimonial to the interests of the masses of India, and for which they owed him a deep debt of gratitude; but he could not help mentioning that to Lord Halifax were the natives of this country indebted for the admission of many of education, position, and influence among them into the Legislative Council of the country. (Applause.) And this alone was sufficient to endear the Lordship's name to the people of this country. Mr. Dosabhoy reminded the meeting that the Government of India was in reality carried on in England, and that the Principal Secretary of State for India and his Council; Principal Secretary of State for India and his Council; but while this was true, it was alike patent to all who ever gave any attention to the subject that that control was merely nominal, owing to the lack of attention which the House of Lords paid to Indian matters. The Secretary of State for India was almost the Czar of India. Upon his acts in a great measure depended the well-being, happiness, and advancement, or the material and political progress, of the people of this country. With the power that he possessed, what could have prevented the late Secretary of State for India from preventing every avenue to the advancement to the natives of India after the unfortunate events of 1857 and 1858? Very few would have been found who would have blamed the man in power situated as he was, and with a high sense of justice and high sense of justice to decide the various questions involving conflicting interests, which arose in consequence of that mutiny, and took it for the people of this country to congratulate themselves happily for the people of this country to congratulate themselves happily for the people of this country to congratulate themselves happily vering treasure. In this instance he has had the good fortune to recover the treasure that was plundered, and to chastise the perpetrators, which salutary chastisement it is hoped will prevent a recurrance of those insults, although it can hardly be expected that in the present situation of affairs his army can be entirely free from such annoyances, and as sufficient time has not elapsed for securing the tranquillity of these newly acquired provinces, the result of a repetition of such audacious attacks may give rise to much inconvenience, and prevent the Pacha from being enabled to enter into our views, by obliging His Excellency to employ a large portion of his troops in the execution of the very harrassing duty of pursuing the Bedouins, who retire into the desert with the booty which they may plunder, and which, one time in ten, cannot be again rescued from their grasp.

* * The revolt of many tribes of Bedouins has, in a great measure, deranged the resources of Ibrahim Pacha, and will of course clog his movements, but I am happy to learn that these revolts are not to be attributed to any acts of cruelty commenced by the Pacha. On the contrary he has pursued the wise policy of attaching to his interests the principal tribe of Binee Khalid, whose chief, Sheikh Arreur bin Sadoon, had been dispossessed by the Wahabee. The descendants of this tribe under Mahomed bin Arreur and Mujeed bin Arreur have lately been reinstated in their family dignities and their properties on a cessation of the hostilities and their submission and the difference of religion renders this tribe the most implacable enemy to the sect of Wahabee and to all those who were adherents of Ibn Saood. Mujeed bin Arreur is at Lahissa, and his brother remains in the neighbourhood with his Bedouin tribe. To this may be attributed the present tranquil state of the district, which is guarded by a small force of Turks not exceeding five hundred men.

"As it will evidently become an object of the first importance that Government should be acquainted with the nature of my reception at the Turkish camp, and of the means the Pacha may have at his disposal to forward the object of combined operations, I have decided on taking with me a despatch boat for the purpose of forwarding the earliest intelligence on these subjects. As I cannot possibly foresee at the present moment the probable period of my return to the Presidency, which circumstance must depend on so many occurrences not within my control, that I conceive it advisable to use every precaution to enable the Government to judge of the possibility of His Excellency's being able to co-operate at so early a period in the year as the Right Honorable the Governor may expect, and of the possibility of which I certainly entertain some doubts, as it appears that His Excellency will scarcely enter on such an undertaking without the concurrence of superior authority. I am further induced to express an opinion that the Turkish government is not at the present instant sufficiently established in the possession of the newly acquired territory, to undertake any operations which may remove so large a portion of the troops to so great a distance as this enterprise would require.

"As Captain Bruce had occasion to address a letter to the Right Honourable the Governor on the subject of the ports on the Persian coast, from whence the pirates of Ras-ul-Khima obtain such constant support, it is unnecessary for me to enter into any detail on this point, which affords but the one conclusion, that they have for a long time past identified themselves with the pirates of Ras-ul-Khima, and placed themselves in the situation of enemies to the British Government.—I have the honour to be, &c.,

"Bushire, 9th June 1819."

Address the following letter:—

"To the Right Honourable Sir Evan Nepean, Bart., President and Governor in Council, Bombay.

* "Right Honourable Sir,—"I do myself the honour to acquaint your Honourable Board that in consequence of the difficulties I am likely to encounter in procuring funds by the medium of Bills to defray the very heavy expenses, I shall be exposed to in prosecuting my journey through Arabia, I have been obliged to draw from Captain Bruce, Resident at Bushire, a large sum in such coins as will be most adapted to the currency of that country, and with a view of making a deposit of the same at Lahissa with the most respectable agent I can select.

"I have the honour to acquaint you that I have now granted a set of Bills on your Honourable Board in favour of Captain Wilson, Resident, or order, for the sum of Rupees (13,336) thirteen thousand, to meet the disbursements of my mission, and which I have to request your Honourable Board will direct to be accepted and carried to the debit of the same.—I have the honour to be, &c.

"Bushire, 16th June 1819."

June 16th.—An unfortunate accident occurred on the arrival of the vessel at the watering place: a second north-west gale set in, and drove the pattamar from her anchors; this obliged her to run into Bushire to obtain the assistance of boats to weigh them, and although I did not require quite so strong a pull, it was impossible till the afternoon of the 16th, when I embarked on the Honourable Company's cruiser "Vestal."

The "Vestal" had been nominated to replace the "Mercury" on the Arab coast, and therefore now despatched to avoid the inconvenience of relieving. We sailed from Bushire roads on the afternoon of 16th, and made the land on the Arab coast at 10 o'clock, expecting no little difficulty would be presented in entering the harbour of Kateef, but our disappointment was great when we discovered that the old stupid pilot was totally ignorant of the harbour, and brought up with all sail set on the edge of a sandbank, where we remained for the night, not being able to better our situation. I despatched Sheikh Khuneen with a letter to the Turkish governor at Kateef, to request a pilot to take us to Anjeer, to which place I had been recommended to proceed, as being much nearer to Lahissa, and the best point for establishing a communication, and for this purpose I had hired a despatch boat at Bushire to accompany the cruiser, that I might have every facility of communicating. This Sheikh had offered his services in the early part of the year, having resided for months on this side, and made two journeys to Deriah; I therefore thought it advisable to have a person with me who would be personally known to the Bedouin Sheikhs.

The Sheikh did not return on the following morning, as I had anticipated, and as a pilot could not be procured, every effort was tried to discover a channel up the southern side of the bay, without success. On the afternoon of 19th, A. Ruhman bin Jaber sent a boat to congratulate us on our arrival. I had been anxious to discover the haunt of this barbarian, which is on the southern side of the bay, and did not succeed till a few hours previous to the arrival of his boat on board the "Vestal." His man returned with a promise that a pilot should be with me in the course of the day, and that no delay should take place. Sheikh Ruhman fulfilled his promise, and sent on board two intelligent pilots, who considered the vessel with the morning's tide into the channel for ships, which is on the northern side, where there is a fine deep channel running close to and parallel with the narrow spit of sandy land by which this side of the bay is formed, or separated from the ocean. We anchored on the afternoon of 20th, having lost two days through the ignorance of the Bushire pilot, who certainly has no claim to confidence. On making inquiries respecting the harbour of Anjeer, Sheikh Rahman replied that it would be impossible to approach it in a large vessel, that a small vessel may lay off at a considerable distance, but that he would not undertake to go round Bahrein closely during the day time, as the passage is intricate and rocky. Sheikh Khuneen on his return brought the same information from Kateef Agha, the Turkish governor, so strongly recommended the anchorage off the fronte of Kateef, that I determined to give up the idea of reaching Anjeer by going round the southern bank of Bahrein, which would have required two days more. I therefore landed on the morning of Monday, 21st, at the village of Seeahat, which is situated on the southern side of the bay, and about nine miles below Kateef.—Khaleef Agha had sent Eusoof Agha, an intelligent Turkish soldier, who officiated as collector of the customs, and next in dignity to himself, to accompany me from the ship, and pitched upon this spot for my residence, as he said the town or city was so very unhealthy that it would be dangerous for me to take up my residence in it even for a night; the distance from the anchorage to the landing place near the village was certainly twelve miles, and the spot where we landed, as well as the whole length of this beach, is so very shallow that camels and horses are used to convey persons from the boats; all baggage, &c. is brought off by camels or asses.

June 21st.—On the afternoon of the 21st I was let to expect that I should have the honour to receive a visit from Khaleef Agha, and on the report of some guns induced me to think that he was about to depart from the fort of Kateef. On the arrival of an Arab who brought a letter from the Agha, we learned that the guns were for the purpose of a salute to be fired by the "Vestal" in the morning, and that the Agha's health did not admit of his paying a visit this evening, which he, however, said he would be happy to do on the following morning, and requested that the doctor of the "Vestal" would afford him medical advice, which was of course offered, and a boat despatched to convey him on shore.

Singular Offer.—Dr Manning has given a singular boon to his flock. Anybody who will promise to abstain from intoxicating liquor (a glass of malt liquor at meals excepted, "if required") from six A. M. on Friday the 16th to twelve at night on Sunday the 18th inst.; and who "offers this mortification for the good of his soul and to avert the anger of God, and justly deserved on account of the sin of drunkenness," and who keeps his promise, is to have forty days' indulgence.—Pall Mall Gazette.

Love in a Workhouse.—Lately the gravity of the deliberations of the Sculcoates Board of Guardians, Hull, was somewhat relieved by the chairman reading the following letter, written by a pauper to a young woman, also an inmate of the house:—"Dear Jane,—If you tax me for my boldness, I might also tax you for your comeliness; for, at the first glance, I thought I knew you, and the attention you paid me confirmed the thought. I belong to Cottingham, and have come in purposely to form an acquaintance with you, which I hope will not be rejected, for you will find me both upright and sincere. And, regarding our errors, none are without their faults. I have a good home to go to, and if you choose you can share it with me. It grieves me to see such a handsome young woman shut out from society and wasting the prime of her life in a place like this. Weigh the matter well, and you will find a married life preferable to ours. I will write more, after receiving an answer to this, with every particular. (Send by bearer of this.)—Yours in sincerity, Luke Whiteman." Whiteman had been admitted as a pauper; and the chairman remarked that, unfortunately for his suit, his "blooming young woman" was married. When brought before the Board Whiteman acknowledged the billet doux. He was told to leave, because he had admitted that he had a good home. The poor fellow seemed quite disconsolate on hearing the words which banished him from the presence of his dear Jane.

A Character.—As he spoke, a heavy man entered on tiptoe, and quietly moved them aside. A raw-boned, hulking fellow he was, with a slouch and a squint, made more impressive by a black eye in the third and most picturesque stage, when mauve, and lilac, and orange intone and soften sweetly off from the purple nucleus outward; as a boy's taw is, or used to be, shaded, with keen artistic feeling, in many a quarter, from the equator to the poles. Mr. Jupp's face was a villainous one; as even the softest philanthropist would have been forced to acknowledge. The enormous jaws, the narrow forehead, the grisly, porkish eyebrows, the high cheek-bones, and the cunning's kance gleam from the black, deep-ambushed squinters—all these were enough to warn any man who wished to get good out of Zekep Jupp that he must try to put it there first, and give it time to go to the devil and back, as we say that parsley-seed does. Mr. Jupp was a man of remarkable strength—not active elastic Achillean vigour, nor even stalwart Ajacian bulk, but like sort of strength which sometimes vanquishes both of those by outlasting—a stonching, slow-to-come, long-to-go heft, that had scarcely found its match in the world when better-built men were exhausted. Men of this stamp are usually long-armed, big in the lungs and shoulders, small in the loins, knock-kneed, and splay-footed; in a word, shaped like a John Dory, or a miller's thumb, or a bagpipe. They are nev very "strong on their pins," nor active; they generally get thrown in the first bout of wrestling before ever their muscles get warm; they cannot even run fast, and in jumping they spring from the heel; nevertheless, unless they are stricken quite senseless at the outset—and their heads for the most part are a deal too thick for that—the chances are that they make an example of the antagonists ere he is done with. And so in Mr. Jupp's recent duello with an Irish bully, who scoffed at Cradock, and said something low of his illness, the Englishman got the worst of it in the first round, the second, the third, and the fourth; but, just as Dan Sullivan's pals and backers were wild with delight and screeching, the brave bargee settled down on his marrow, and the real business began. After twenty-five rounds, the Tipperary Slasher had three men to carry him home, and looked as far inclined to sit upon, without making him any fatter.—"Cradock Nowell; a Tale of the New Forest." in Macmillan's Magazine.
